NEW BOOK TELLS STORY OF INDIAN STREAM TERRITORY

Clash of social and political forces in the disputed New Hampshire-Quebec border area around 1800 is the subject of a new book being published this week by the Western Reserve University Press, Cleveland, Ohio.

Author of "The Struggle for the Indian Stream Territory" is Roger Hamilton Brown, graduate student in history at Harvard University.

Locals for the frontier episode in the wilderness of New Hampshire above the 45th parallel. Disputes over the Indian Stream territory originated in the ambiguous wording of the Treaty of 1763 between the United States and Great Britain, which left in doubt much of the northeastern boundary of this country.

Brown traces the contents between land speculators—"clearly behind the struggle for the territory"—and settlers, and between special interest groups whose disputes echoed in the state and national capitals.

As pointed out by the author, the Indian Stream territory affair "was a tiny one; yet had it come three years later... it could easily have precipitated hostilities." Forces which led to the disagreement over a span of nearly 50 years were "by no means unique or unimportant in the evolution of the American frontier," according to Brown.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The Budget Committee have completed their work on the 1956 budget recommendations, and have made careful consideration of all items.

As everyone has expected the total amount recommended will be more than last year's appropriations. The previous Corporation services are being assumed by the Town. In addition to the regular services recommendations have been made to rebuild Elm and Paradise Streets; increase the street lighting on Main Street as well as to continue the new Mercury vapor lights already installed at the Church and Railroad Streets intersections, East Bethel and West Bethel intersections. Recommendations also include construction of the long talked of building to house the old Town records which have overflowed the Town Clerk's safe. Naturally these new services will increase the total amount needed for 1956, details next week.

The revaluation program is being carried on as a representative of Wright and Pierce is now working in Town to check boundary lines in connection with their maps. The plan is to have the Town meeting business conducted in the evening following voting through the day for Town officers. Thank you.

Economic Highlights

happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

A century, but in historical perspective, is only a moment. Yet within the last century, and mostly within its final 50 years, the economic and social structure of this and other Western countries has undergone thorough change.

That point was made by T. S. Petersen, president of the Standard Oil Company of California, in an address before a group of visiting Japanese businessmen. He said: "It is one wonder that many people still do not understand what has happened, and is still happening. There has been a change in the development of the modern business philosophy, with particular emphasis on the change in the character and role of management."

In an earlier and simpler era, such manufacturing as existed was carried on by individuals or small groups. Their activities had little effect on the welfare of anyone but themselves. They could do what ever they liked, within the limitations of the laws of the time.

Then came the corporation, and a new age. The corporation, by enabling many people to combine money and money, was able to meet the public's wants with unprecedented efficiency and activity. At the same time, as Mr. Petersen said, "The corporation's great power of use extends to misuses and abuses. Something had to be done to make certain that the great power of the corporation would be used for good and not for bad."

With a system of checks and balances analogous to those within our three-branch federal government, came into being. The checks and balances are the checks and balances of the corporation, the government, and the general public. To quote Mr. Petersen again: "Each of these groups has an important influence on the way we conduct our lives and shape our future."

UN-FORMER . . . Mrs. Lillian H. Petersen, 44, is U. S. only Mrs. Petersen, who was named most outstanding woman at Los Angeles State College.

Yet these groups often have conflicting desires and interests. The stockholder wants the highest dividends and the low costs which will make them possible; while the employee wants the highest wages. The customer wants the lowest prices, and the government and the general public may want various other things. That brings up a problem faced by the managers of industry: Where do they stand and where should their loyalties lie in this conflict of interests?

Before answering, Mr. Petersen described the position of the manager in modern industrial America. He is a paid employee. In the past, by comparison, owner and manager were generally one and the same person. Today's manager usually has only a small stock interest in the corporation he represents. Thus, in Mr. Petersen's phrase, "he is basically a supervisor, or overseer."

From this, Mr. Petersen has shaped a philosophy of management which fits the conditions of the present and vividly indicates the virtual revolution that has taken place in 50 years or so. It is this: "The foremost objective of management is to balance the conflicts and differences of interested groups, to the end that business will be carried on so that all of these groups receive the maximum benefit; and that none enjoys an advantage at the expense of another."

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIERS

From Mrs. Anna Breckbill, Herkington, Kansas: Yes, I remember the wheat trade. We had some wheat in the wheat store. My father and I, in those days they made wheat with the wheat store. We children carried them on a pile to be checked. I was 12 then, and 13 now.

The wheat bundles were hauled to the big back barn and backed up to the second story. When the wheat came, the wheat machine was moved into the barn. They measured the wheat in a galvanized half bushel, something the top with a small board a little larger than a yard stick. It was then put in grain sacks, ready for market. I still have one of the grain sacks that my father brought along to Kansas in 1882.

My father had his horse power — eight horses hitched in four teams. A man stood in the center and drove the horses round and round all day long.

From Mrs. Lillian H. Petersen, Upton, Wyoming: I remember before glass fruit jars were available here in Wyoming. My mother canned wild service berries in beer bottles which she could get for the asking at the saloons.

I can see her now, patiently filling these bottles with a teaspoon, then pressing in the cork and pouring hot molten resin for a seal.

IN ENGLAND WITH MISS LAURA WILSON

Well, the vacation has started at last. I rather hated leaving my English home but I will be back to it twice before finally leaving it.

Thursday evening Mary's had their scrumptious Christmas dinner.

Things have intervened. I have been to Bristol to plan the vacation with Jane Condon, who is a Fulbright at the University of Bristol. I arrived there Saturday afternoon, eight hours fast train ride. The only thing that saved me was the fact that the train was full of University of Durham students going home. Of course, I ter. Now I guess we're caught up.

had my two suitcases — very heavy. Poor Janet! We have planned quite an itinerary. Leave London, 9:06 A. M. Dec. 28; arrive back London, 2:23 P. M. Jan. 15. How does it sound? Exhausting but glorious to me.

Sunday we went out to an English family for dinner. It was really most enjoyable. A man and his wife with two young but mannerly sons aged 13 and 15. I never saw two boys that age who were so perfect gentlemen. English boys are quite likely to be, I find, so it isn't impossible as I once thought. In the evening we went to the Methodist church better here in the evening than morning. The churches are quite packed in the evening. Monday morning I explored Bristol Cathedral and started on this letter. Now I guess we're caught up.

Well, you should have seen me at Paddington Station. A fellow in my compartment in the train happened to be going on the same underground that I wanted. So I got that far all right. Then I had to change at the sixth stop. I said to myself: "I'll be all right if I don't have to go down any escalators. Sure enough, I got my ticket for Russell Square and go through the gate. An escalator! A nice man behind me picked up my heavy suitcase and down we went! At the next stop there was an elevator. I walked out the door onto the street, caught a cab very easily and felt quite proud of myself to think that I was at the nearest subway station without ever having been here at the Friends' International Center before! Consequently, the cab was very reasonable and I was happy. Large cities are really quite harmless if you keep your eyes and ears open. Will write more later.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

Ferris, Calif., Progress: "Certainly, the highway problem is a pressing and complicated one. Whether it can best be solved by the old formula of let the federal government do it is a question a good many people are pondering very seriously."

Calgary, Canada, Herald: "No one wants to impede civil defense. At the same time handing sweeping powers to the government, any government, is dangerous and totally unnecessary. Parliament must be the arbiter of what is right, not some official who was granted the powers and won't have to answer for them because he was given them by an act which was not necessary."

Abilene, Kansas, Reflector-Chronicle: "A recession is a period when you tighten your belt. In a depression you have no belt to tighten. When you have no pants to hold up it's a panic."

1955 Basketball Summary

The 1955 basketball team featured height in the fore-court and good scoring ability. Three team members finished the season with average game scoring in double figures. Dave Knight broke the average game scoring record held by Jerry Davis since 1949 which then was 18 points per game. Dave scored 225 points in 12 games for a game average of 18 1/2 points. Jerry's record was 270 points in 13 games for his 18 point average. The 1955 team had a good scoring record with 771 points for a game average of better than 65. The 1949 team still holds the record with 834 average. The average opponents score was better than 59 per game. The fact that the pre-game team lacked speed had a great deal to do with their poor defensive showing.

Dave Willard, another regular, Rod Barlow, and Norman Hill will also be graduated. Back to form the nucleus of next year's team will be Jon Jenckes, Dick Roberts, Guy Whitten, John Giddings, Jim Murphy, Fred Feltner and Jerry Snell.

Gould Second in N. E. Ski Meet. Lebanon, N. H., continued its domination of the scene by winning its eighth New England title in nine years. Roger Dion of Lebanon won his third straight jumping title and his second downhill crown in as many years. Gould Academy wound up in second place followed by Edward Little of Auburn. Farmington placed fifth in the 11 team field and as a result all three Maine teams qualified for next week's Eastern championship at Lyndonville, Vt. Al Lamson of Gould was second to Dion in the downhill and was the best Maine jumper in third place.

Washington, Iowa Evening Journal: "When it becomes harder to sell than to buy, look for a price sag. When it's harder to buy than to sell, look for prices to climb. This seems to apply to every type of merchandise sold, and the only way to change it is to turn everything we have over to the government and let the experts handle all supplies and all demands. Most of us - we hope - still prefer to face the occasional uncertainties of the market than to put all our trust in politicians and economists."

BURGESS, FORESTER IN OXFORD TREE FARM PROGRAM

Sumner L. Burgess, District, has joined the Wood Department of the Oxford Paper Company as a Forester. It has been announced by Harry J. Beach, General Manager of the Oxford Wood Department.

He will represent the Company in the recently announced Oxford Tree Farm Family program now being sponsored by the Company.

Before joining Oxford he was employed six years by the Maine Forest Service as a Service Forester. Prior to that time he had worked two years with the Hollingsworth & Whitney Company.

The services offered to Tree Farm Family members by Oxford are included in the following seven-point program which has been adopted for this service by the Company: Examination of woodland area with the owner to discuss various problems and stand conditions in order to establish a system of woodland management. Advise the owner on the management of his woodland based upon stand conditions, his requirements and the present labor and market situations. Formulate a guidance plan to aid the owner in carrying out a well balanced woodland program. Assist the owner in timber marketing. Assist in providing a market for the species of pulpwood, used by Oxford, which is cut according to methods prescribed by the Tree Farm System and approved by the Company representative. The outlet for such wood would necessarily occur at the periods during the year when Oxford is buying pulpwood. Provide marketing guidance and information for all wood products. Provide owners with information on the latest developments in wood lot management, utilization, and harvesting methods.

The Oxford Paper Company, in sponsoring the Tree Farm Family program, is interested in helping woodland owners in establishing tree farm practices on their woodland and aid them in carrying out a management program that will lead to a Tree Farm Certification by the Maine Tree Farm Committee.

A Tree Farm Family consists of an informal group of Certified Tree Farmers and potential Tree Farmers, who receive free of charge technical advice and guidance from foresters of the sponsoring company. Any forest owner interested in the farming is eligible and welcome to membership in Oxford Tree Farm Family whether or not he is presently a certified Tree Farmer.
